TO PLANDAY

Frontend developer, driven to make things happen

I first knew Planday a few years ago just after moving to Denmark (I also had an experience with your competitor - Quinyx) and I nailed both because the biggest challenge about working in a restaurant is to deal with crazy schedules.

Nowadays from a developer perspective, it becomes even more interesting because I can see how important is to have all features working smoothly to provide the best experience. Working at Planday I am especially interested in build efficient frontend solutions. As your new frontend developer, I can deliver a high service quality with:

- Proficient Front-end development using modern JS, CSS and HTML (React.js with Styled components).
- Solid knowledge of RESTful API using Node.js, Express, MySQL (Knes.js), Postman and Swagger.
- Optimize the cooperation between designers and developers.

A structured workflow

The way I work starts from small commits with predictable and easier to debug code, building reusable React components and resulting in an efficient and fast application. I also care a lot about the documentation to make it easily accessible to my colleagues.

With this behavior, I can keep an organized and structured workflow in a fast-paced environment. From that point, I can engage the team to give/receive feedback and make us improve the projects we are working on. Efficient collaboration and teamwork are key factors for me.

The link between designers and developers

I come from both worlds. With a background as a professional designer (10+ years experience), I am highly proficient in quickly mocking ideas with Sketch, Figma, and Adobe. My eyes are trained to look for structure and visual aesthetics in all that I do. Moreover, I will work as a link between designers and developers, being able to merge the two areas into an amazing solution.

Warmest regards,
Tiago Gonçalves
